

Contemplation

The Events of Our Lives Are Nothing More
Than Footnotes to Our Relationship with God

This is another game changer.

It switches the background with the foreground.

It puts front and center what is most important - in contrast with that which keeps our attention so continuously focused outward.

Reminder: on the last day, when we give up our mind and body, the only thing we have left is our relationship with God.